Date:	December 3, 2011
Title:	Leadership Lock-In
Objective:	To bond with the other officers within student council and provide a time for the officers and committee chairs to complete projects and formulate new ideas for the upcoming year
Indicate Target Group:	Student Council Officers and Committee Chairs
Resources Used:	The high school and whatever materials we had on hand to make posters and carry out project ideas; TASC website and other leadership resources (magazines, books, etc.)
Description:	Following a Highway Clean-Up that day, we asked the officers and committee chairs to donate a portion of their Saturday to attend the Leadership Lock-In. Here we gave time to the officers and committee chairs to think of new projects to carry out in the upcoming year. Many of our officers and committee chairs are involved in numerous activities, so this was a dedicated time for them to organize themselves within student council. The workshop was also a way for the officers and committee chairs to review past successes and failures that occurred in the previous year. We ran the workshop just as any workshop we attend sponsored by TASC; therefore, more people were given a small taste of what to expect if they are to attend a TASC workshop. The students had a bonding moment where the officers and committee chairs were given the chance to work together and develop relationships with each other to make the council more productive and build trust with each other.

Title:	Self Esteem Projects
Objective:	to boost self esteem, especially for female students
Indicate Target Group:	student body
Resources Used:	t-shirts, sticky notes, markers, plastic Easter Eggs
Description:	Student Council had t-shirts made that say "I'm Beautiful" on the front (backwards so that in the mirror it reads forward). On the back of the shirt, it says "So Are You". We also created sticky notes that said encouraging things like "You're One of a Kind", "You're Beautiful", "You're Special" and put these on mirrors in the girls restrooms. During Easter, we typed up sayings like these and placed these messages inside plastic Easter eggs and then 'hid' these Easter eggs throughout our campus.
